5) RUPIT & BESALU *

Our beaches are very attractive, but don't forget to visit the hinterland of Costa Brava!

One of the delicatessen of this region certainly is the medieval mountain village of Rupit that has preserved its rustic charm over the centuries - not least because of its unique landscape scenery and due to its fantastic waterfalls in the Sau Valley.

On the way back from Rupit you visit the picturesque medieval village of Besalú, former residence of counts and plagued with historical palaces and churches of the 11 -13 th century, especially the stone bridge, one of the landmarks of the city. The visit gives you the opportunity to taste the typical Ratafía-liquor, of that region.

The nearby Lake of Banyoles, amid the volcanic landscape of the Garrotxa on our way back is another stop in this unique landscape. The lake is a reservoir of subterranean flows from the mountain regions of Catalonia and one of the largest natural water reservoirs in the region.
